

We Want Our Villa Back: An open letter to the Holte End

Dear Holte Ender

This letter hasn't been easy to write and it's also taken time to decide if we should, but as Aston Villa supporters can we really go on any longer like this?

Our three sites have come together to write this letter because there has been a lot of talk the last few days of protests. Add to that, unsavory scenes between Villa supporters in the stands at recent games, both at home and away, it's now time to do something.

As Villa supporters, we all want the same thing - We Want Our Villa Back.

We believe there is no better way of showing the board how we feel than having an empty Holte End for the first eight minutes of the Liverpool match this weekend, one for the past eight seasons under the current regime. After the eight minutes then take your seat and support the team fully for the remaining 82 minutes, a number synonymous with Villa's finest hour.

Under the previous Chairman, when the Holte End wanted to be heard, Doug Ellis would hear and more often than not, he would act. In truth, he often acted before it got this bad. Our current owner can't hear the Holte End as he's sat thousands of miles away, so let him see it.

Why have we gone this far?

For reasons only a few know, Paul Lambert was awarded a new contract after two seasons of under achievement. But as it's the decision of the Club to stick with the manager and in our role as supporters, knowing the owner isn't going to change his mind while trying to sell the club, we have to play our part.

However, things are not right at Aston Villa and it's not just under Paul Lambert. There have been too many seasons of under achievement and this great Club and its supporters deserve better. It's clear to the footballing world that things are not as they should be at Aston Villa and unless things change soon, the decline will continue.

This is a peaceful demonstration followed up by good old fashioned Aston Villa support. This is a message that if absolutely everything is not done to drive Aston Villa forward, it's possible that more supporters are going to leave the Holte End, but this time not come back.

And if you're reading this, you have a big part to play, even if you don't sit in the Holte End. Download this letter, print as many copies as you can and hand it out to fellow Villans at Villa Park this weekend. And don't forget to sign your name to it.

Saturday is fundamentally a warning sign and we truly hope that by acting together as supporters, we're demonstrating that our role is still one that should be considered very important by the Club.
